

2021 Annual Report

Mission Statement: The Utah National Guard has a unique dual mission that encompasses support to our nation and state.

The Utah National Guard is composed of two branches of the military, the Utah Army National Guard and the Utah Air National Guard. The adjutant general is the military commander of both branches and is appointed by the governor. While serving in a state status the governor serves as the commander in chief. This duty shifts to the president of the United States when forces are federalized for national missions.

The mission of the Utah National Guard is to provide mission-ready military forces to assist both state and federal authorities in times of emergency or war. Since 1894, The Utah National Guard has effectively trained, equipped, and prepared its members to accomplish that mission successfully. We stand ready to protect our citizens from enemies both foreign and domestic, and to react quickly in the face of natural disaster or emergency. We are always ready and always there.

FORT DOUGLAS MILITARY MUSEUM / UTAH MILITARY HERITAGE AND HISTORY

Mission Statement: During the 2020 Legislative session, the Fort Douglas Military Museum was designated as the state's official Military Museum. Along with this recognition, the Museum is tasked to preserve and interpret Utah's rich military history, educate visitors about the role the military in the growth and development throughout the state, and to connect communities and generations in honoring all Utahns who have served, continue to serve and those who support the Armed Forces. Through exhibits, events, educational programming and publications, the museum seeks to engage and inform the public about Utah's rich military heritage. Our mission is to preserve and interpret Utah military history; educate visitors about the role of the military in the growth and development of Utah; and to honor all Utahns who have served their country in uniform.

Directed by: Beau James Burgess, Museum Director / Historical Collections Curator

Location: 32 Potter Street, Salt Lake City, Utah 84113 / Public Hours: Tuesday through Saturday, noon to 5 p.m.

The Museum interior officially re-opened to the public in July having closed March of 2020 until July 2021 due to COVID-19 pandemic guidelines. However, the grounds and exterior exhibits remained open to the public year round.

Visitors: 1,112 adults, 317 children, 294 out-of-state, and 12 foreign countries.
(Numbers only capture inside visitors during a portion of the year, outside visitors unknown)

On site: Throughout the closure, Museum staff continue to field historical research inquiries, conduct community lectures, collect and preserve artifacts, and provide facilities operations for military- and veteran-oriented organizations.

Events: The Museum leverage established partnerships to engage the public through walking tours, virtual presentations, outside gatherings and in-person support as needed. Annual events were postponed to the upcoming year.

Of note: The Museum has completed 90 percent of its federal artifact inventory reconciliation. , the federal portion of the collection is among the top three largest in the Army Museum Enterprise, Center of Military History system. The Museum also maintains a sizable state artifact inventory.

Other: The Museum worked with the U.S. Army Reserve Sustainment and Resiliency 88th Readiness Division Cultural Resource Team in the disassembly, storage, reassembly and final restoration of the 3rd California Volunteers Monument, often referred to as the Bear River Monument, in the historic Post Cemetery. The two-year project was completed in the summer of 2020.

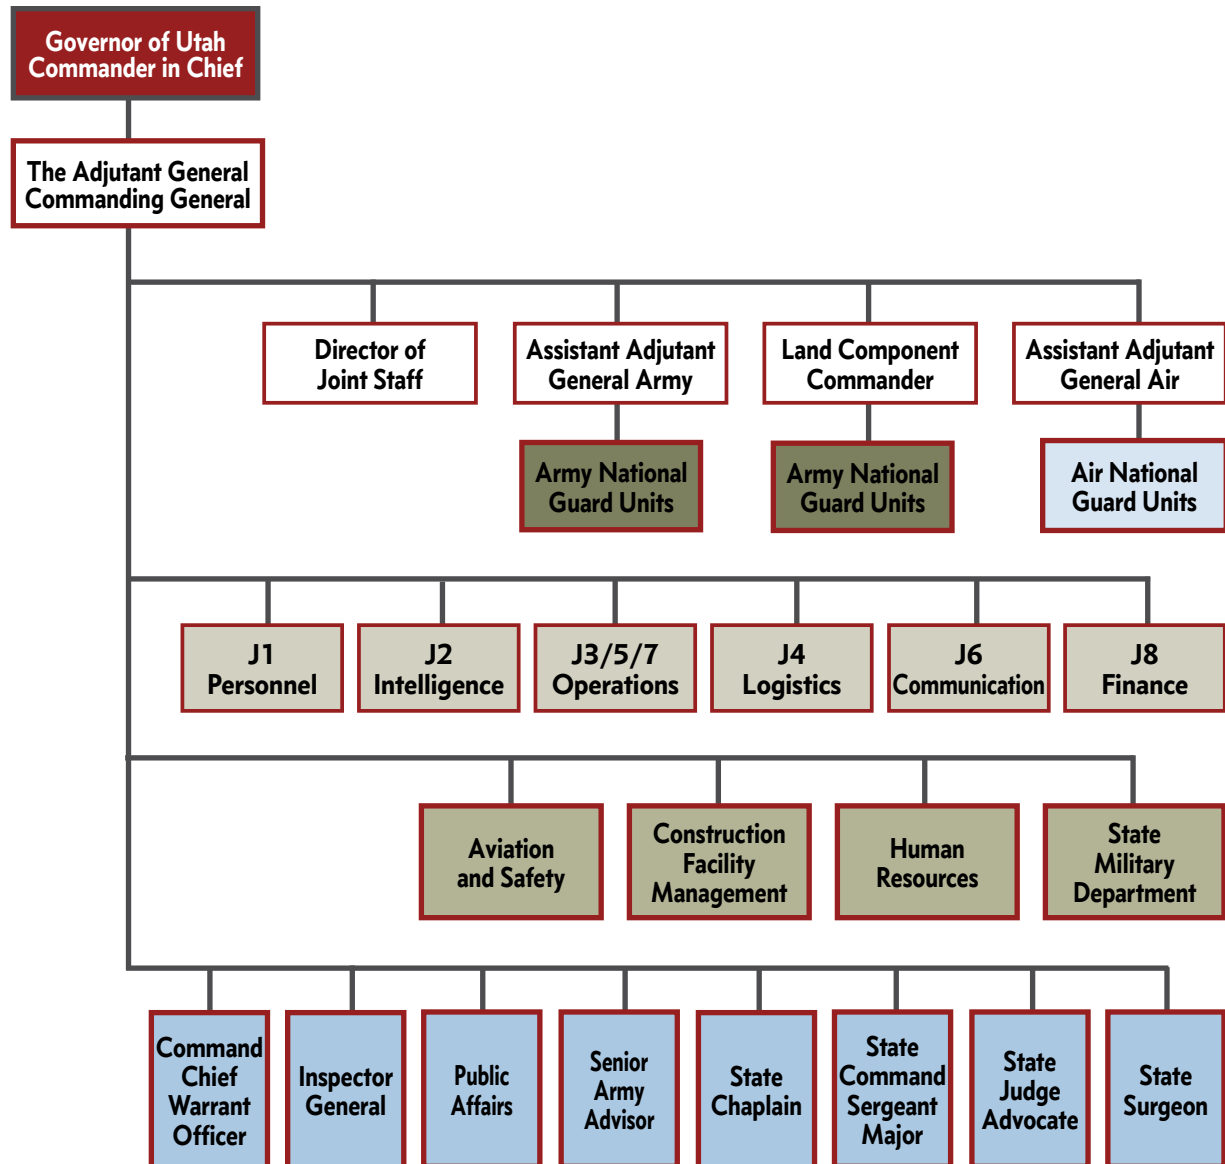

The museum partnered with the Utah State Historic Preservation Office for several archaeological walking tours of the Fort Douglas Historic National Landmark. Tours built around content from a ground-penetrating radar project of Stilwell Field that located foundations of the original guardhouse and armories and artifacts found during other on-site digs over the years.

In recognition of the 20th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks, the museum supported Salt Lake City Mayor Erin Mendenhall in developing a message for the city's first responders and others affected by the events of that day memorialized by the Utah Fallen Warrior Memorial, a piece of the World Trade Center.

JOINT DOMESTIC OPERATIONS OFFICE

The Utah National Guard, Joint Domestic Operations Office, provides command structure and support for the missions and service members of the Utah COVID-19 Joint Task Force supporting the Utah Department of Health (UDoH) and local health departments in 3/5 state priorities. 1. Promote and deliver vaccine and booster 2. Promote and deliver treatment 3. Continue to emphasize testing 4. Prepare for winter 5. Emphasize messaging around vaccine.

The UTNG has unique capabilities and is trained to work with emergency responders during crisis-response operations, and supports the whole-of-government efforts in dealing with the COVID-19 pandemic as needed by the governor.

Brig. Gen. Darwin (Dar) Craig was assigned as a dual-status commander of the T32 UTNG service members and the T10 Active Duty service members, Nov. 8 to Dec. 6, 2021. Active Duty service members support the state of Utah's priority to deliver treatment; conducting monoclonal antibody infusions in St. George, Utah.

This past year has seen a continuation of support to the statewide COVID-19 response. In February of 2021, vaccines for COVID-19 became available to the public by phases based on a predetermined priority. When the vaccine was accessible to the general population, the UDoH began fielding massive requests for support to assist local health departments. With few medical resources available, the state requested the UTNG to provide this critical support.

With this new vaccine support mission, the number of personnel, comprised of Army and Air National service members, supporting Utah Task Force 97 grew to just under 300 volunteers. Initially, vaccines missions were only supported at long-term care facilities and in cities along the Wasatch Front but quickly moved into smaller communities. Once the demand overwhelmed the smaller and less staffed local health departments, the UTNG stood up a team to support the vaccine needs at the local level. At its height within TF 97, the vaccine support team grew to 219 personnel, including vaccinators, medics, and administrative support. This support provided an average of 1,017 additional COVID-19 vaccinations per day throughout the state.

TF 97 also continued to provide UDoH with much-needed support for COVID-19 testing. Testing teams comprising 62 Army and Air National Guard members conducted testing in Salt Lake, Davis, and Utah Counties. The UTNG outnumbered the state employees three-to-one on any given day, meeting each community's critical needs.

With new COVID-19 variants appearing in Utah over the summer months, the UDoH again saw a gap in their resources and requested assistance with its COVID-19 case investigation and contact tracing mission. As this mission did not require medical professionals or providers to conduct it, the UTNG quickly sourced this mission with 16 UTNG volunteers. The team traced the route of infection, contacting individuals and organizations after receiving positive COVID tests that may have involved them.

In mid-July, TF 97 assigned five personnel to support the state's warehouse assisting with receiving, sorting, and distributing test kits, vaccines, medical supplies, and personal protective equipment. The TF 97 also provided eight personnel to support the state laboratory with skilled technicians and three medical personnel assisting with medical analysis.

TF 97, led by Col. Tammy Manwaring, maintained operational and logistical support to the UDoH until deactivating in mid-July. COVID support then transitioned back to Lt. Col. Erick Wiedmeier, the Joint Director of Military Support.

In late summer, the state met its goal to increase state resources hiring on a testing workforce to meet the demands throughout the state, reducing UTNG required support. The new testing workforce allowed the UTNG to minimize the support of 297 personnel to 100 Army and Air Guard members.

In August, the UDoH began conducting monoclonal antibody infusions to enhance recovery to persons infected with the COVID-19 virus. Through statewide public messaging, the demand for this life-saving infusion quickly grew beyond the capacity for the state and local health departments to meet. The UDoH asked UTNG to provide support for this new mission. The UTNG assigned a team of 15 personnel to assist UDoH in providing infusions at a fixed site within the Salt Lake Valley. As the need arose, the UTNG assembled a mobile unit to provide support in multiple remote locations. Developing an efficient process and achieving higher than expected goals reduce the number of potential deaths throughout the nation. UTNG's monoclonal antibody infusion team paved the way for other states to take on monoclonal antibody infusions in their states.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with Lincoln's family, especially his wife and children, friends, and teammates," said Maj. Gen. Michael Turley, adjutant general, Utah National Guard. "While training accidents like this are rare, it is a reminder of the enormous sacrifices made by our service members and their families every day."

His family said Olmstead loved his country and was honored to wear the Green Beret. He was born a Soldier. From a very young age, he knew he wanted to be a defender of mankind. All he wanted was to protect people. When he learned of the Green Berets and their motto De Oppresso Liber, "to free the oppressed", he knew that was where he belonged.

And he not only belonged, but was loved by members of his unit, where he was dubbed a shining star. Members of his unit said the only fault they could find was to tease him about smiling too much.

"This is an absolute tragedy, especially when we lose someone as capable and promising as Lincoln. Sometimes we expect this sort of thing in combat, but not during training, which makes this difficult for the unit and especially the family," said Col. Paul Peters, commander, 19th SFG (A). "Our thoughts and prayers are with the family, and everyone affected. We are committed to ensuring the family is supported over the coming days, weeks and months."

"Olmstead was a trained professional, fully committed to the community, the country, and the mission. The selflessness and sacrifice of our service members define the Utah National Guard. Our priority right now is to take care of the family, ensuring they have all the resources they need during this critical time."

Olmstead joined the Utah Army National Guard in February 2016 and served as a Special Forces Engineer Sergeant since October 2019. He completed numerous schools and training courses, most notable he was a graduate of the Survival, Evasion, Resistance, Escape (SERE) Course; Military Free Fall Course; Special Forces Sniper Course; Basic Airborne Course; and was also the honor graduate for his cohort of the Special Forces Advanced Urban Combat Course.

Gov. Spencer Cox, who is from the area and knows the Olmstead family, spoke at the funeral, saying that on behalf of all of Utah, our hearts are broken, and our state is mourning together.

"Today we honored Staff Sgt. Paul Lincoln Olmstead as he was laid to rest in Spring City. We are profoundly grateful for his sacrifice and commitment to his country," said Cox. "Please keep his family, loved ones, and fellow service members in your prayers during this most difficult time."

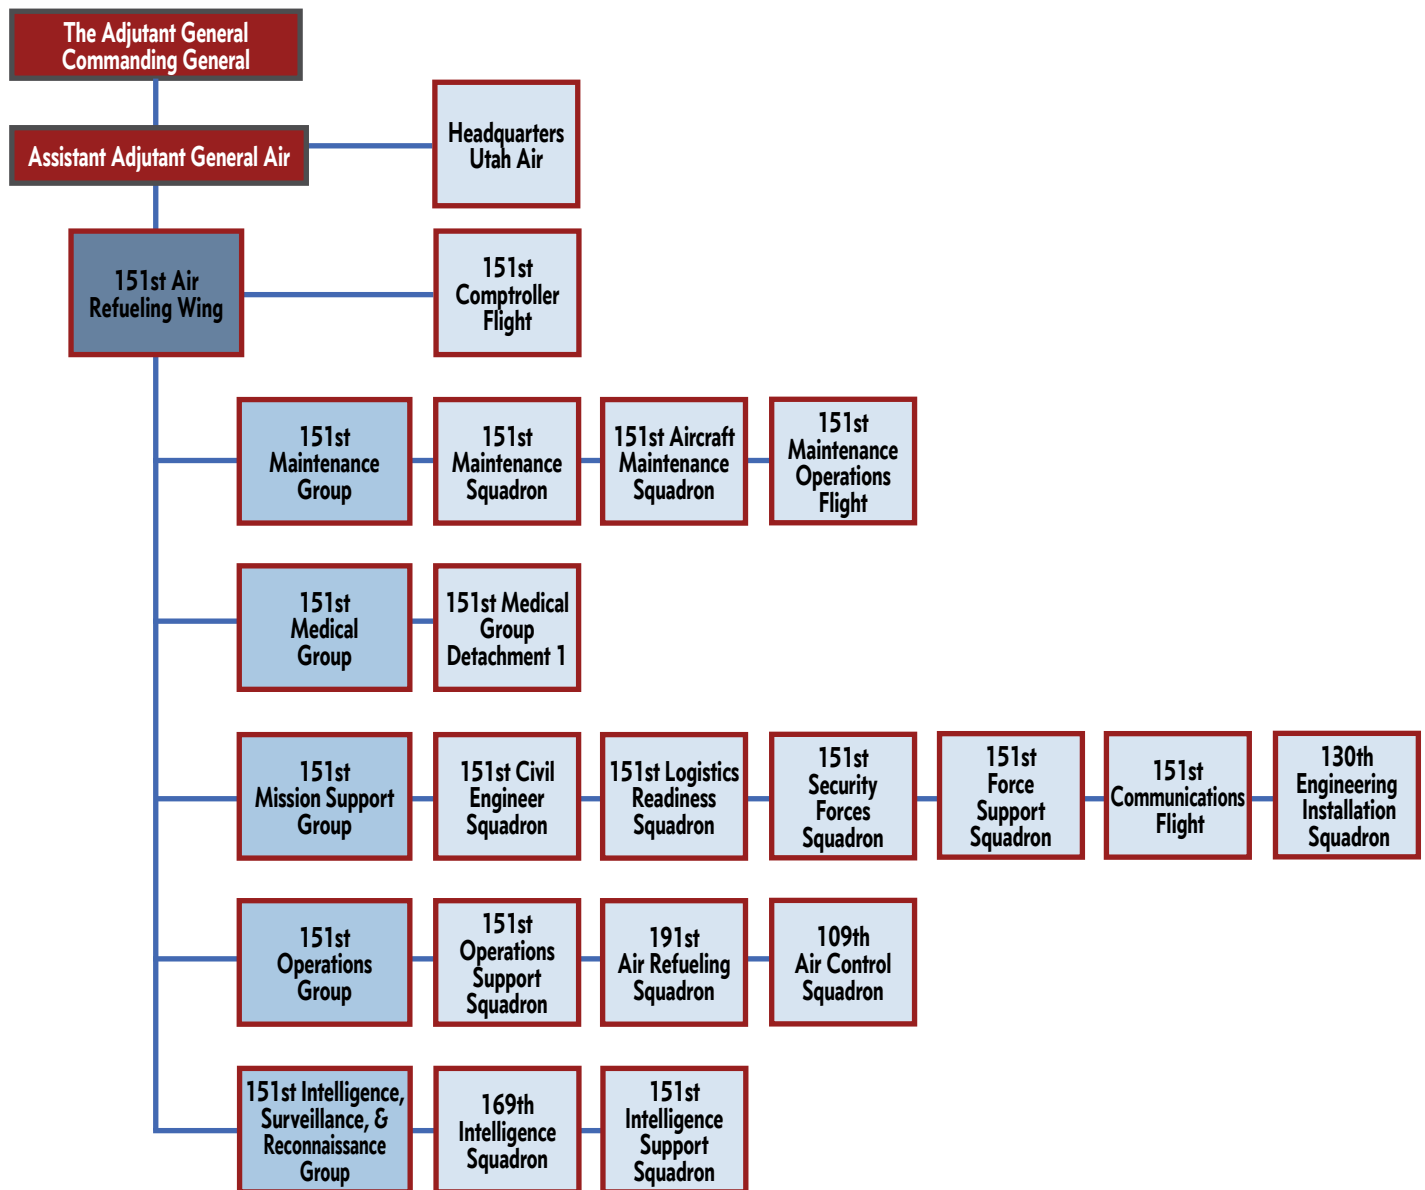

Olmstead, 29, leaves behind a wife, Danaya, a three-year-old daughter and one-year-old son.

151st INTELLIGENCE, SURVEILLANCE AND RECONNAISSANCE GROUP /

151st ISRG

Mission Statement: The 151st Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance Group provides translation and analytical processing services to customers and partners throughout the wider intelligence community. The organization's wartime tasking is in support of the Distributed Common Ground System, the Air Force's premier intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance weapon system. Additionally, the ISRG has 12 support agreements in place to provide long-term, in-depth analysis and reporting services to other national-level intelligence producers and consumers.

Command Team: Col. Troy Drennan and Chief Master Sgt. Brady Herbert
Headquarters: Roland R. Wright Air Base, Salt Lake City, Utah
Total Airmen: 211 • Officers: 8 • Enlisted: 201 • Title-5 Civilian Personnel: 2

Deployments: 23 members deployed-in-place to support four separate combatant commands.

Missions: 72 Distributed Common Ground System missions totaling 638 hours. When not directly working missions, our 23 deployed-in-place members provide translation and analytical support to analysis and exploitation teams throughout the DCGS enterprise.

Training Events: As part of their annual training, 15 members deployed to Royal Air Force Base Digby, England, for two weeks in an exchange program with the Joint Service Signals Unit (volunteer), a group of highly experienced linguists and analysts supporting the Royal Air Force.

Real-World Support: Members provided more than 23,000 hours in support of 12 different federated intelligence production missions spread across several partners within the intelligence community. Those hours of work resulted in 311 discrete reports, 126 of which were identified as "critical" to intelligence community efforts. Additionally, near the end of the fiscal year, four members who were former Pashto and Urdu linguists deployed at short notice to support Operation Allies Welcome.

Other: 22 of our drill-status Guardsmen (part-time) worked full-time with other intelligence community partners, most of them within Utah. These Airmen bring a wealth of knowledge and skills with them when they perform their military duties.
